Dear Mr. Stout:

After trying your new and innovative bandage, Elasto-Gel, I am writing to say thanks. It is without doubt the most fantastic product for external wounds I've ever seen.

While riding my bicycle in the MS150 tour in early September, I hit a slick spot on the asphalt road and crashed going downhill at slightly over 30 miles per hour. I slid on the pavement for about 40 feet.

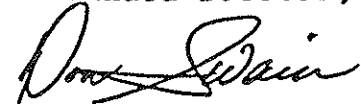

The three inch diameter wound to the side of my hip was extremely painful and the conventional bandages would adhere, pull and aggravate the healing process. Changing the bandages was a total nightmare.

Two days after the incident I had the good fortune of finding Elasto-Gel. It produced immediate relief. It took about five more days for a layer of skin to grow over the injured area. During this time, when I removed the gel pad, the burning sensation would return almost instantly. With your pad in place, it produced a cool soothing effect that allowed me to walk, sit and sleep with no real discomfort.

Your product works so well at relieving pain, promoting healing, acting as a shock absorber, stretching with natural body movement and being removable without pain that no household or treatment center should be without them.

Congratulations for a great product!

Continued Success,

Don Swain
